Synopsis of Book

Buster loves snacking just before bedtime. Take a peek under his bed and you'd find crumbs, discarded wrappers and half-eaten bits of food. One night, Buster hears strange noises from under his bed! A stomach growling, fingers drumming, feet scratching and a tongue sloshing! Is there really a monster on the prowl for food? Is Buster safe? Read this book and find out for yourself!

About the Author

Adeline Foo first dreamt of becoming a writer when she was a little girl. A recipient of the inaugural First Time Writers & Illustrators Publishing Initiative presented by the Media Development Authority and the National Book Development Council of Singapore in 2006, she has not stopped writing since winning the award and has eight published children's books. Adeline's books have received excellent media reviews and have made their way to Frankfurt and Melbourne. Three of her books had crossed over from print to screen as animation shorts, one of which was screened at Cannes. The "Monsters in the Mind" books address the child in her who never quite grew up and allow her to be ingenious in banishing the thing under her bed!

About the illustrator

Christopher Martin is Creative Director for Splatter, the second youngest in a family of seven children, and a dedicated husband and father of three great kids. He has exhibited work in Singapore, Malaysia, USA and Australia, and has won major Australian Export Awards for his beautiful artwork. He holds Diplomas in Cartooning and Illustration, and Applied Science, and the stylistic backbone of his artwork is borne of his continuing love, since childhood, of popular culture. His works are colourful, inspired, witty, simple in form and line, sometimes tongue in cheek, light-handed and smart; but they always make you smile.

About the 'Monsters In The Mind' Series of Books

Written by Adeline Foo, this book series, targeted at children ages 6 and above, feature monsters' as central characters. These monsters, however, are intangible ones derived from shadows, sounds and imaginations in overdrive. Each story's moral, subtly embedded, touches on positive values such as love, kindness and trust. It is hoped that as children read on and discover that the monsters exist only in their minds, they will banish their fear of them. Other books in this series include Monsters On The Wall, Nu-Nu, The Ring-Necked Monster and Guai Wu, The Monster Child.
